Highlights On Last Year's Observance Are Recalled

By THOMAS L. DABNEY

The observance of Negro History Month by the schools and colleges of the nation is a topic of interest to many. It is an opportunity to reflect on the contributions of African Americans to American society and to acknowledge their role in shaping the nation's history.

Methods of Observance

There are various methods by which Negro History Month is observed. Schools and colleges may incorporate themes related to the history of African Americans into their curricula, hosting lectures, workshops, and seminars. Many institutions also host events that highlight the achievements of African Americans in various fields, such as art, science, and music.

American Negro have their own unique perspective on the nation's history. They have a deeper understanding of the experiences of African Americans and the challenges they have faced. By observing the history of African Americans, American Negro have the opportunity to learn from the experiences of their predecessors and to build a better future.

Suggestions Listed For Model Program During Week and business, race relations, and religious service.

Individual success stories among Negroes have increased rapidly within the past ten years. Outstanding among these are William G. Haywood, chemist, who was employed for two years during the World War as a chemist for the Wilsonite, and Benjamin Newton, E. Simmons Campbell, who does more and more work with Negroes on Life, Opportunity, Opportunity and other magazines; and Walter B. Gordon, one time popular assistant coach of the football team of the University of California, where he won his A.B. degree in 1918.

Certified definite things should be done during the week by means of speaking, making a the world, the world could be called upon to bring in some Negroes from other nations and to help them in their native land, that they could help in the work of the observance of Negro History Month. In this way, the observance could be extended to include people from all over the world.

History Offers Wealth Of Material For Observance Of Negro History Week Which Begins February 10

Reproduced with permission of the copyright owner. Further reproduction prohibited without permission.