

Editorial

---

No child is safe as long as the slayer of Dorothy Gordon is alive.

Due to the lapse of time and the absence of direct clues it is doubtful that police will be able to apprehend the slayer without the utmost cooperation of local citizens.

There is every reason to believe that a degenerate of the kind who killed the little child will return to this community sooner or later to pick up some other innocent and unsuspecting victim.

Every parent should warn his child to have nothing at all to do with any stranger and should also tell the children to report any case of molestation to adults immediately.

In addition local residents should keep a sharp lookout for any strangers who are seen near schools or playgrounds and who are loitering there.

It is probable that numerous suspects will be picked up before the police are able to find the killer but with cooperation of local residents and with every person in the community maintaining a sharp lookout it will only be a question of time before the rapist is apprehended and punished.

At the present time there are rewards of almost two thousand dollars posted for information that leads to the arrest and conviction of the kidnapers, which should offer added incentive, if any is needed, for every person to join in the manhunt.

Those who aid in this quest for Dorothy Gordon's killer are not only helping punish a guilty man; they are protecting their own innocent loved ones.