Notice Says

Irvin C. Miller's Brown Skin Models, rated as the gayest snappiest musical comedy of the season, composed of 35 artists coming straight from old Harlem, will appear on the stage at the Attucks Theatre on next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

This diversion in amusement comes as a part of the newly inaugurated 1933-34 Greater Show Season according to an announcement coming from J. E. Kelly, supervisor of the southern district of Lichtman Theatres, Inc.

The fast stepping musical revue is composed of such outstanding stars of the stage as Alto Oates, Blanche Thompson, George Bias, Teddye and Estelle and red hot jazz orchestra. It is said to be the greatest galaxy of entertainment ever assembled in one production.

There is not a dull moment in the show. When one act is dancing off the stage, another is dancing on, and the troupe carries fine costumes and excellent scenery, according to advance notices.

Mr. Kelly of the Attucks Theatre declared this week that he believed the show to be the finest stage attraction that will stop in Norfolk this year.

And it will be here only three days—Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Screen Program

Like the intrepid adventurers who go after big game in Africa with rifles, Constance Bennett becomes a daring huntress whose game is millionaires susceptible to her fatal beauty, in her new starring picture, "Bed of Roses" which shows at the Attucks next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

A musical background adds charm to "Peg O' My Heart," coming next Thursday for three days featuring Marion Davis. As a little Irish girl who inherits an ancestral estate in England and falls in love with the young lawyer who arranged for her entrance into society. Miss Davies is considered at her best in this picture.

Blanche Thompson is the name. The Spanish shawl is becoming, but wait until you see Blanche next week when she comes to the Attucks Theatre with Irving Miller's Brown Skin Models.
